

Doubt

by Roland Albertson

If you feel that this is now the end
If you feel that something's missin'
Then we gotta go, somewhere we all know
Right back to begin

Yes you know just what I'm on about
We all live but we there is just no life
Staying in our homes, mostly all alone
But are we having fun?

So tell me now where did we all go wrong?
We've felt this for too long

I'll take you where you've never been before
To a place where your ambition takes the fore
So believe in yourself, don't let doubt take control
Yes all I ask is that you will stand strong
When doubt comes along.

Yes we all have our own mystery
To unfold, it's called your destiny
Yes you will be set free, when you live and breathe
In something you believe.

So tell my why this world has got no soul,
No conscience or moral?

I'll take you where you've never been before
To a place where your ambition takes the fore
So believe in yourself, don't let doubt take control
Yes all I ask is that you will stand strong

When doubt comes along.

When doubt comes along.

So tell me now when will we all be strong?

I can't take this for long

I'll take you where you've never been before

To a place where your ambition takes the fore

So believe in yourself, don't let doubt take control

Yes all I ask is that you will stand strong

When doubt comes along.

When doubt comes along.
